

Official Recruiting Highlight Films

Produced by Tyler Norton In Partnership with MCW Starz

Built for college exposure

These highlight films are built using direct guidance from college coaches on what they look for when evaluating prospects. These are not “instagram highlight reels”. They are game film style videos where coaches can easily evaluate skill, spacing, defense, and basketball IQ.

Why This Matters

College coaches receive hundreds of highlight videos every season. Most are unstructured mixtapes. Coaches don’t have time for that. Within the first 30–60 seconds, they’re evaluating:

- Decision-making under pressure
- Defensive positioning and effort
- Shot selection and efficiency
- Impact beyond scoring

A recruiting film isn’t about flashy plays.

It’s about showing basketball IQ, consistency, and coachability.

These films are built using direct input from college coaches on what they actually look for during evaluation.

These are not “instagram highlight reels”. They are game film review style videos where coaches can easily evaluate skill, spacing, and basketball IQ.
